

How to Cite the Tools for the Primary Care of Adults with Developmental Disabilities – Digital Version

This is a brief guide on how to cite the tools published on this page.

“Orange” Tools

General Issues in Care of Adults with DD

Please check for the name of the developer(s) at the end of each tool and then cite the work in the following manner. Example:

The developer of the Genetic Assessment: Frequently Asked Questions is Dr. Cynthia Forster-Gibson. This tool should thus be cited as follows:

Forster-Gibson, C & Developmental Disabilities Primary Care Initiative Co-editors (2011). Genetic assessment: Frequently asked questions. In: Tools for the primary care of people with developmental disabilities. Available from: www.surreyplace.on.ca/Documents/GeneticAssessment_FAQ.pdf (accessed 21 March 2014).

For the Informed Consent Tool, the team lead is Dr. Greg Gillis. This tool should thus be cited as follows:

Gillis, G & Developmental Disabilities Primary Care Initiative Co-editors (2011). Informed consent in adults with developmental disabilities. In: Tools for the primary care of people with developmental disabilities. Available from www.surreyplace.on.ca/Documents/InformedConsent_in_Adults_with_DD.pdf (accessed 21 March 2014).

For the other information pages under General Issues, the team lead is Dr. William Sullivan. Therefore, the author line for each of these publications should read:

Sullivan, W & Developmental Disabilities Primary Care Initiative Co-editors (2011).

Physical Health Tools

The team lead for the Cumulative Patient Profile is Dr. Tom Cheetham. This tool should thus be cited as follows:

Cheetham, T & Developmental Disabilities Primary Care Initiative Co-editors (2011). Cumulative Patient Profile for adults with developmental disabilities.
